

David Caffey

PROFESSIONAL PRESENTER and HOST

David is a great presenter, a master training facilitator, and a true professional that connects well with his audience. I personally endorse David as he is a great contributor to every project he touches.

Ricardo C., Director - Marketing; LG Electronics, Inc

If it's time to introduce a new product or service to your customers or your employees, if you're taking your company and products to a trade show for the first time or the fiftieth time, if you just need a short video presentation to share with clients or staff...you want to make sure you're delivering a message that is captivating, memorable and can generate some real leads.

David can help maximize your success at your next event by delivering your message conversationally, credibly and in a way that connects with your audience. Your customers, clients and team members will be able to take away both the features and benefits of your product in a way that's easy to remember and be able to put that information to use selling your product in the field.

David will take your script or presentation and bring it to life in a way that is fun, energetic, engaging and memorable. Drawing on his experience in sales, training and acting David works directly with your staff to develop a presentation that incorporates product names, features and benefits in order to showcase your company's message.

Don't have a presentation ready to go? David can help you build an effective presentation from the ground up or work with you to add some polish to your current version.

David is also available to help train your team members to be more effective presenters
